Workplace Assessment

As a qualification is more than theory workplace training and assessment develops the practical applications of the qualification; interaction within a professional environment, communication and the roles and responsibilities for your chosen career path. College Australia students have stated this enhances their overall appreciation and comprehension of their qualification.

Students undertaking this qualification are required to seek workplace training. College Australia through its Student Wellbeing Outreach will assist you to find suitable child care work or work experience to complete the practical elements of this qualification. Workplace training and assessment is the collection of information, tasks and evaluation of career duties to ensure the required elements of competency are being achieved.

Workplace assessment will include a combination of recognition, observation, oral questioning, discussions and third party validation.

Completion of the Workplace Assessment Kit is to be undertaken after the workplace training has been finalised. A qualified manager or supervisor who observed your workplace training will sign the assessment validation form in the kit provided.

First Aid

Students completing this qualification are required to hold a current or have completed a full senior or basic first aid certificate, issued by an accredited provider.

If you do not hold a current first aid certificate College Australia can arrange for a qualified trainer to teach and assess you in the required first aid course (included in course fee). Students are required to complete the written and workplace components to meet the first aid unit, to achieve competency for the unit:

HLTFA1A -Apply basic first aid	HLTFA2A -Apply advanced first aid
